E. J. Arceneaux Sr., owner and manager of Arceneaux's Super Service, will open the Dodge automobile and truck dealership at his place of business January 31. Mr. Arceneaux has been in the automobile business since 1922. In thanking his customers for their splendid patronage during his many years in Bay St. Louis, Mr. Arceneaux assures them that he will continue to give the best automobile service obtainable. The ECHO staff wishes Mr. Arceneaux a successful future with his new agency.

A dance for the benefit of the March of Dimes fund will be given at the Top Hat Club, Waveland, Saturday night. Music will be furnished by Kramer's orchestra as a donation to this worthy cause. A donation of $1.00 will provide you with an evening of entertainment. Be sure and attend. Your contribution will help give a new meaning to the life of some polio victim.

Bay St. Louis should be proud of its camellia devotees. Rev. Father Christian Baker, S. V. D., of St. Augustine Seminary, awarded the Edward Atchley Memorial, a silver tray, for the best seedling in the Mens' Camellia Club Show in New Orleans January 24. In addition to this, Father Baker won the highly commended certificate for new seedling camellias from the American Camellia Society. The seedling he entered was "Mrs. Rafferty," named for Mrs. Rafferty of Pass Christian. It is an irregular double, candy stripe with blotches of rose-red, flesh base and circular in shape. Father also won a blue and two red ribbons.

Now that Spring is just around the corner, don't you think it's time to start cleaning up and beautifying our surroundings? Once again Bay St. Louis is going to be included on the agenda of the annual Spring Pilgrimage sponsored by the Garden Club. If we get started now, planting and cleaning our yards will be lovely when the many visitors come to our city.

Lions Hear Radio Representative On Program For Bay

At their last meeting for January, the Bay St. Louis Lions Club and their guests, civic leaders of the Bay-Waveland area, heard a proposition from a representative of a New Orleans radio station for advertising the Hancock County section to prospective new residents, both permanent and summer.

Sal J. Rezza, former Gulf Coast resident, who is presently serving on the management staff of station WVEZ in New Orleans, told those present of the possible results of a "Bay St. Louis Hour," directed at listeners not only in the greater New Orleans area, but in vast areas of Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana, Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and Florida.

Describing the climate and ideal living situation in Hancock County as being of the finest, without the crowded conditions now becoming prevalent in EL, Rezza stated that his radio station, the largest and strongest independent radio voice in the south, would provide a direct entry into thousands of homes and that many of those people are always on the lookout for not only a vacation spot, but for a summer home and many times a permanent site.

Following a question-answer period, the Lions voted to place the proposition before the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce for their cooperation.

In club activities, the Lions took the float decoration for the Mardi Gras king, which will enter into the competition for the best float in the annual parade February 17. It was also announced by the organization's president, Rev. C. S. Schultz, that a magic show will be sponsored by the Lions February 16 with matinee and evening performances at the high school auditorium.

Guests of the club were Mrs. Caroline Kiefer, Miss Udell Favre, T. T. Robin, James Pfeiffer, Homer Gregory, R. F. Mestayer Jr., R. G. Hubbard and Howard Le Tissier.

Telephone Service Increases In Bay

Expanded telephone service was part of substantial progress recorded in Bay St. Louis in 1952, according to J. C. Dabney, Southern Bell manager here.

During 1952 the number of telephones in service here increased 41, or 24 per cent. As the year ends, 1748 telephones are in service, as against 1707 at the first of the year. "The number of people with telephone service is regarded as a good barometer of economic health, and the number in service at Bay St. Louis continues to increase. We continue to receive a heavy volume of new applications," Mr. Dabney said.

Mr. Dabney explained that at the end of World War II, the total number of telephones serving Bay St. Louis were 769. Thus, Bay St. Louis has experienced an increase of 127.3 per cent since that time.

The expansion of Bay St. Louis' telephone system was part of a state-wide telephone growth which in 1952 added 12,694 to the total telephones in the state. Mississippi now has 246,998 telephones in service, which is more than two times the number in service in the state at the end of World War II.

Southern Bell in 1952 provided over $15 million worth of additional facilities in Mississippi, making a total of over $71 million spent in the state since World War II.

"In addition to providing telephones to residents of Mississippi cities and towns, Southern Bell has installed many rural telephones throughout the state," Mr. Dabney said.

"During the past year, we have added net 4,800 rural telephones in Mississippi at a cost of more than two million dollars. Mr. Dabney pointed out that Southern Bell is aware that in spite of its tremendous expansion program in Mississippi, there are still many persons waiting for telephone service. "Due to the rapid economic growth of this region," he added, "We still receive heavy demands for telephone service. We are working hard to meet all service needs, both civilian and military. As we enter the new year, we are confident that telephone service will continue to play an increasingly important role in the economic and social life of the state."

Big-hearted Hancock Countyites don't have to wait for a neighbor to tap them for a contribution to the March of Dimes. If you want to take a slap at polio (and who doesn't?), here are a few ways to do it as suggested by Hancock County campaign director.

Grocery shoppers, elbow benders, bus and rail nomads, stamp buyers, bank savers, soda sippers and coffee hounds will be confronted by "iron lung" coin collectors handy at practically every cashier's counter in town.

"Mile O' Dimes" Stand Open

Window shoppers are almost certain to be lured to the Mile O' Dimes stand which is being manned by members of the Boy Scouts on our streets.

Braving the January chill on practically every downtown street corner, will be Boy Scouts with coin collectors outstretched to receive your polio-fighting dime or dollar.

More than 2,000 School Cards have been handed out to pupils

The Feast of Lights will be held at Christ Episcopal Church at 8:00 p. m. Friday, January 30.

Through the ages, light has been the symbol of progress and truth.

The Feast of Lights depicting the spread of Christian Truth had its origin in the Eastern Church early, even antedating the observance of Christmas by the Western Church.

The Feast of the Epiphany inaugurates the great missionary season of the Church. Today many young people feel a deep sense of the importance of the historic continuity of the Church, the universality of Christ, and the beauty and glory of the Christian message as reflected in the symbol of light. Thus, the young people of Christ Episcopal Church will present this pageant and cordially invite all interested persons to be present.

Dr. Hewitt D. Vinnege was appointed first president of the newly organized school; he resigned, with his resignation to become effective January 1, 1953. Dr. Lansdon H. Bowen, Ph. D., who was appointed to succeed Dr. Vinnege, resigned in a letter addressed to Reverend Douglas MacLaurie, December 22, 1952.

Mr. MacLaurie, formerly president of Canterbury college, Danville, Indiana, was named executive secretary and chapter administrator of Keble at the beginning.

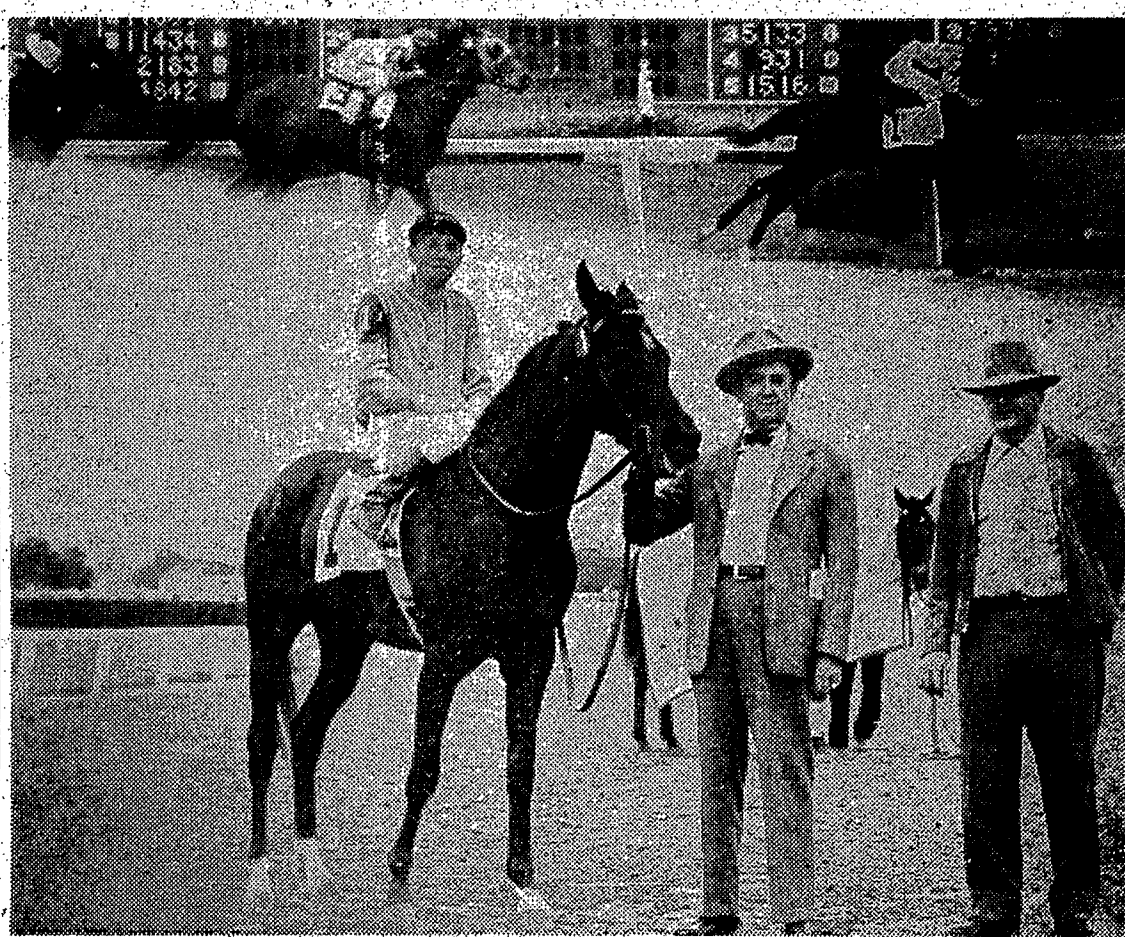

In the letter to the parents, Miss Woodburn stated, "The three preliminary and preparatory years of survey and evaluation, the raising and expenditure of tens of thousands of dollars, the endless detail related to the negotiation of this ideal facility and plant for a college, the acts of confidence, sacrifice and friendship offered, and given to the project by so many, the thrill and challenge of actually starting a 'Venture of Faith' in the 20th century, the acceptance of the struggle for existence with its days of happiness and discouragement, the joy of raising an acceptable instrument to the glory of God in behalf of youth and education, and the vision of what could have been accomplished—all these are now past and this chapter in the history of a worthy and essentially good project will shortly be closed."

"It is with thanks, then, for all that has been accomplished and with confidence in ultimate victory, that we invite your prayers in behalf of all the donors, parents, students, faculty and administrative staff who have aided and abetted in this project under our sponsorship."

The time of the race was 34.5 seconds. L. Shelton is the trainer. Jockey W. Owen rode Niembro Cue to victory New Year's Day.

Reports that an additional $740,000 in bonds must be issued to complete the four-lane toll bridge over Bay St. Louis due to unexpected construction costs, have been confirmed by state highway officials.

State Highway Director W. C. Robbins said that the additional funds were necessitated by foundation problems encountered during construction of the bridge.

He said that a "hole" of several hundred feet had been encountered in the bottom of the bay which required a more expensive operation than scheduled.

With the additional $740,000, the amount of revenue bonds for the project will reach $9,740,000. Bonds previously sold for the bridge amounted to $8,400,000. All will be funded by tolls on the new bridge.

According to Robbins, the completion of the bridge, originally scheduled for June 31 of this year, "won't be far off that date." He said that despite the foundation problems encountered, and a labor strike held up part of the structure, "work has been fur about on schedule."

Robbins estimated that the bridge would be no more than a month late in being completed, late as, all.

Success of the March of Dimes

The March of Dimes touches every segment of our society. Mr. and Mrs. Hancock County who volunteer their services; the thousands who contribute money to the fight, and the boys and girls, men and women who are stricken with polio and need aid—all benefit in one way or another.

With the passing of each year, the March of Dimes has filled the widely differing needs of all these Americans more effectively, efficiently and intelligently. The history of the March of Dimes in providing meaningful community work for public-spirited citizens as well as in the raising and disbursing of funds for the common good is an inspiring success story.

Before the birth of such voluntary agencies as the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, government health officials found it difficult to enlist the public in any project designed to improve health.

Even now, in this Year of Enlightenment, 1953—such problem in public welfare as slum clearance, crime prevention, stream pollution, smoke abatement, rural health and control of sex offenders defy every governmental attempt at improvement.

Out of this vacuum was born the brightest product of the current era of specialization—the voluntary health agency specifically organized to fight a single disease. Such an organization is the National Foundation supported by the March of Dimes.

This great humanitarian association has justified its existence beyond all question. It has proven its reliability. The March of Dimes has earned the growing support of increasing numbers of Americans everywhere. Join the March of Dimes today.

MISSISSIPPI FORESTS, ONCE A NUISANCE
NOW SUPPORT STATE'S LEADING INDUSTRY

By ED DE MOTTE, District Manager American Forest Products Industries

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is one in a series of feature forestry stories sponsored by the Miss. Forestry Association to create interest and appreciation of the State's forest resources.

Trees are money—and to Mississippians they mean more than $350 million each year. But that wasn't always the case.

In the spring of 1843 a travel-weary DeSoto trekked slowly westward from his winter camp near the site of Pontotoc. Desperately he sought a path through open woods and clear glades of which there were few in the heavily forested territory.

His horses struggled through the thick timber, in need of grass. Hogs driven along as food for the party scampers away in the underbrush. Heavy woods made the group more vulnerable, too, to surprise attacks by Indians. DeSoto admired the beauty of the forests but to him they were useless and actually a threat to his very existence.

Arrival of the first settlers some 150 years later found the virgin forests still a nuisance. They were attracted by the rich soil and mild climate. An agrarian economy was all the pioneers knew and they needed cleared land for their corn and cotton.

Clearing of the land made logs available for homes, furniture, wagons, stockades—practically everything the settlers used. Logs were shipped to Europe, too. But still they were plagued with an oversupply of timber.

Land clearing parties even became fashionable. Neighbors would spend the day cutting logs from a friend's property and piling them in the center of the clearing. That night the logs would be burned to provide light for a party attended by all the families.

Appearance of the first crude sawmill in 1724 pointed the way to a new method of getting rid of the logs. Almost worthless trees occupied thousands of acres that they thought they needed for farming and other purposes. They were "sighted to have a sawmill come in and cut every tree in sight, leaving the now ridiculous figure of a few cents a thousand for the timber."

To this day the landowners added another $20 or so per acre to meet expenses of de-stumping the cleared areas. Much of this land, incidentally, proved unsuitable for profitable farming and has since reverted to timberland.

As it became apparent that there was a state to be built and a nation to be expanded, sawmills became plentiful. From Mississippi's pine woods to its Delta swamps came lumber for hundreds of thousands of homes and the fuel to heat them; the fences and barns on as many farms; the stores in which people traded; the schools where their children were educated; the churches in which they worshipped; steamboats, fishing fleets, ties for railroads, timbers for bridges, poles for telegraph and telephone lines.

The part of the forest wealth that wasn't used here went by rail to the rest of the nation and by ship to all parts of the world. And it poured back into the state hundreds of millions of dollars over the years. Mississippi's forests provided the money as well as the materials to build its railroads, bridges, ports and cities like Laurel and Hattiesburg.

It was in the desperate years following the war between the states that Mississippi's timber really saved the state. Lumbermen from the Lake States moved in and built huge sawmills, putting thousands of job-hungry men to work.

The profits may have been banked in the North but the money spent for timber, for labor and for supplies came to many a desperately sick community like a blood transfusion to a wounded soldier. Behind and around the pine stumps arose a new state.

It's true that no provisions were made for a future timber supply. But it was also true that when stumpage was so cheap and when it was believed that at least 80 years would be required to reforest cutover land no one could afford to invest in timber growing. It just wasn't practical.

About the turn of the century, however, there arose a small handful of prophets who foresaw future conditions in the timber economy. They also thought that the favorable southern soil and climate would produce sawlogs in as little as 35 years. Even at the low market prices of those days, these pioneers believed that timber could be raised profitably as a crop. They pleaded with landowners to leave well-distributed seed trees on cutover lands, to stop the destructive fires and grazing that stifled the reproduction of future tree crops.

Those fathers of reforestation in the South—among them the late Posey Howell, of Howlston—were even more right than they realized.

Their estimates of cost were accurate and they did grow sawlogs in 35 years and less. But they had no way of foreseeing the skyrocketing stumpage prices that would result from development of vast new uses for wood. Some of the most important of these new applications for wood were discovered by research and developed by industry right here in Mississippi.

The greatest incentive to the practice of forestry was probably the coming of the pulp and paper mills to Mississippi. Profitable thinning for the pulpwood market can now be made in 15 years or less after planting time, and regular thinning of both pulpwood and sawlogs can be made about every five years without reducing the capital stock of timber.

Tree farming has become even more profitable than those early reforestation missionaries ever dreamed. As a result, while Mississippi was once almost 100 percent forested, timber today still covers more than one-half of the state.

Much of this acreage is understocked, poorly managed and has no fire protection. Good forest practices are being spread as rapidly as possible, however, and progress is being made.

Decentralized ownership of the state's 15 million acres of timber makes the education problem difficult. More than 140,000 farmers and other small landowners control 12 million acres of the timber and reaching so many people with the forestry message is no small task. Most of the two million acres owned by the forest industries is under reasonably good management.

The fact remains—after more than 200 years of constant use—Mississippi's forests still bring some $250 million into the state each year, pay the wages of almost half the state's industrial employees, and are contributing far more to the wealth of the state than did the virgin timber that once grew on the same land.

All the boys had an enjoyable time. Penny Cole described it as a "king's feast," pretending that he was the king.

The old saying, "The least expected things often happen" certainly held true for the Logtown bus on Wednesday of last week when a wild turkey flew into the windshield. The bus, driven by Ray Dawsey, was between Logtown and Pearlman when a plump turkey hen smashed through the windshield knocking itself and the windshield out. It landed in the lap of the driver, who immediately stopped the bus. Outside of a scratch or two on Ray, no one was hurt.

THIN YOUR PINES

There are several reasons why your plantation needs thinning, but the main one is that you planted more trees than can grow to maturity. If you don't take some of them out, growth will slow down and many trees will die.

It is the same with any crop where you plant more than you need. Take corn, for example, you plant several seeds to the hill, with the hope that at least one will sprout. In most cases, two or three sprout, and soon begin competing for growing room. While sprouts are still small and before growth slows down, you can crop out all but a couple of the best in each hill. This gives plenty of growing room, and with a good season, assures a fine crop.

Pine trees are much the same. You plant about 1,000 to the acre with the idea of harvesting 100 or 200 trees as sawtimber. You plant enough so that you will have a full stand even though some trees die.

Some trees grow faster than others. In 10 or 15 years, some will be 3 to 4 inches more in diameter than others.

At about this time they begin to crowd. So you thin your pines for the same reason you chop your corn, to pick the largest and best trees in less time.

Trees are a long time crop as compared with corn. Corn needs only one thinning, trees need several to keep them growing at their best. We are talking here about the first, or post thinning. It is the important step toward plantation management. It gets your stand down in good condition so it can produce the most pulpwood, and sawtimber in the shortest time.

See your local forester for advice and assistance in thinning operations.

MEC TO MEET

A four-point agenda will occupy the attention of the Mississippi Economic Council board of directors when it meets on February 11 in Jackson for the first time this year. Otto R. Smith of Meridian, MEC president, announces.

He said the session would be the "most important" one since the MEC's organization, since at the meeting the board will be called upon to:

1. Take action on the taxation committee's recommendations relative to state laws governing cooperatives and general corporations.

2. Receive and act upon the final recommendations of the county administration and finance committee. This report includes far-reaching recommendations relative to county government, and includes a detailed study of 18 representative counties.

3. Adopt a program of work for the next fiscal year, which begins on May 1, 1953.

4. Adopt officers for the next fiscal year. Present officers, in addition to President Smith, are: V. D. Youngblood, Brookhaven, vice-president; and Sid Wiggins, Pascagoula, treasurer.

The official explained that the taxation committee report was submitted several months ago, but that it was termed of such magnitude that it was set for "first order of business" at the meeting on the 11th. Chairman Ben F. Mitchell of Cleveland, of the taxation committee, and Chairman C. P. Fortner of Eupora, of the county government committee, will have members of their respective groups on hand to answer questions arising from the reports.

The meeting will get underway at 9 a. m. in Hotel Heidelberg. There are 76 members of the board.

Members of this area are: Ray M. Stewart, Piquette; C. N. Ellzey, Biloxi; and A. M. Dantzer, Perkinston.

Christ Episcopal Church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Betty Ann Fucish, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jaubert Fucish, to Alfred Franklin Tillman, Sunday, January 25, at 5:00 p. m.

Rev. Charles R. Johnson performed the double ring ceremony before the altar which was embellished with white gladiolas and potted palms.

During the ceremony, Mrs. J. R. Rollins, accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Phillip Allison, sang, "O Promise Me."

Entering on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage, the bride wore a ballerina-length gown of cloud soft candlelight ivory Burlington nylon tulle and lace, which was imported from France by her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Clemence J. Chadwick. The full skirt of nylon tulle, was made with panels of Chantilly lace. The bodice, which was outlined in seed pearls at the neckline and the sleeves were of the lace.

The veil of illusion fell from a Juliet cap of lace, encrusted with seed pearls, over Skinner satin. She carried a cascade arrangement of lily of the valley and Stephanotis, tied with flesh colored ribbon, and centered with a purple-throated white orchid; a shower of lover's knots completed the arrangement.

Mrs. Sidney Manieri Jr., of Gulfport, who served as matron of honor, wore a Nile green gown of chantilly lace and tulle. The bodice of lace formed a decollete; a stole of matching tulle covered the shoulders. The voluminous skirt of tulle was draped to one side with a panel of the same material as the dress. She carried a cascade bouquet of Wedgewood iris tied with Nile green ribbon.

The bridesmaids, Mrs. Van O'Guin of Waveland, who wore a gown identical to that of the matron of honor, in daffodil yellow, and Miss Peggy Jordan, of Gulfport, whose gown was of lilac tulle and lace, carried cascade bouquets. Mrs. O'Guin's flowers were lemon yellow carnations tied with a deeper yellow ribbon; and Miss Jordan carried pale pink carnations tied with lilac ribbon. They both wore headpieces and gloves identical to those worn by the matron of honor.

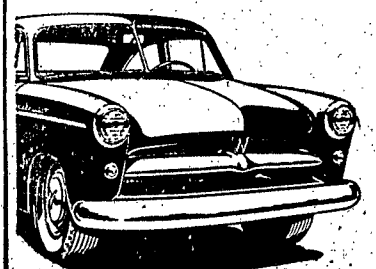

Van O'Guin of Waveland served the bridegroom as best man; groomsmen were Sidney Manieri Jr., Gulfport, and Rudolph Tillman, Pass Christian; ushers were Benny French Jr. and John French of Henderson Point, Miss. Hotel Reed was the scene of the reception which followed the ceremony; assisting the bride party in receiving were the parents of the couple. Mrs. Fucish chose a black crepe dress worn with an iris corsage for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Tillman wore a navy blue dress and iris corsage. Both wore matching accessories.

For their wedding trip to Florida, the bride wore a dusty pink and grey check suit with grey accessories and a white orchid corsage. Upon their return, they will be at home in Huntsville, Alabama, where the bridegroom is stationed with the U. S. Army.

The bride, who attended St. Joseph's Academy and Newman School in New Orleans, is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Portis Hyams of New Orleans. Her mother is the former Eleanor May Hyams.

The bridegroom, who was a student at Pass Christian High School prior to entering the Army, is a First Sergeant in the Medical Corps.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Milton Burdine, Mrs. E. G. Alshuler, Sam Fucish Jr., Mrs. Robert Lienhard, of New Orleans; Mrs. Mary Hatcher, Mr. and Mrs. J. Blount, Mrs. Ryvers.

Pass Christian News

by MRS. JOE ALLEN

FUTURE HOMEMAKERS LUNCHEON CLUB

The Future Homemakers of America organization's unit at the Pass Christian High School recently voted to have a luncheon meeting each Thursday, according to an announcement made by Miss Sue Ashford, president of the club. Members of Future Homemakers club gave a show for this week for one of their members who is now married.

Mrs. G. Orrell, advisor for the group, says there is a benefit supper scheduled for the club in March. Important work accomplished recently by the club was a unit of study on Family Relationships. Research and study with reports given by members.

Growing Up Socially, Patricia Price; Understanding Yourself, Nancy Robinson; Your Behavior Problems, Jackie O'Boyle; Choosing Your Career, Judith Scarborough; Getting Along With Others, Rose Ford; What is Honesty? Doris Ladner; Discipline, Fern Neale; Where Are Your Manners? Betty Scarborough; Budgeting, Jeannette Pravost; Should You Go to College, Dolores Stephens; Money and You, Mary Harrison; Enjoying Leisure Time, Ruby Jo Lively; Clothing for Children, Shannon Sprinkle; The Child from One to Six, Margaret Lacy; Looking Ahead to Marriage, Dela Lazanna; Your Heredity, Ann Ashford; How to Live With Your Parents, Carolyn Ladner. Future Homemakers have read and reported on such worthwhile books as 'Home and Family Living' by Justin & Rust; 'Experiences in Homemaking' by Laitene & Miller; 'Your Home and You' by Greer; 'The Family and Its Relationships' by Groves, Skinner & Swenson.

Mrs. Cagle of the Harrison County Health department has been selected as a speaker by the club. Mrs. Cagle will instruct club members in care of the sick including meal planning, bed making, taking temperature, and how to make a patient comfortable.

Some twenty students from the tenth grade at Pass High are members of the local unit of this national organization. Mrs. G. Orrell, as advisor, as well as head of the Department of Home Economics in the school, has done an uncommon job in guiding this group. Her scope of teaching embraces much more than the old-time standards of "sewing and cooking." Her aims are toward preparing the student for adult life in its many phases of living. Up-to-dateness in teaching procedures and ability to stimulate pupils in learning activities characterize Mrs. Orrell's methods and are reflected in the students' well-groomed appearance, manners, and cooperative attitude toward assignments.

TEEN-TOWN CARNIVAL BALL FEBRUARY 13

Mrs. Charles Atchley, chairman of Teen-Town Planning, entertained a group of co-workers and representative teen-agers in her home on Tuesday evening at a Coke party at which time final plans for the Teen-Town Carnival were made.

Mrs. Sam Jeffcoat, vice president of the Parent-Teachers Association, was selected as co-chairman to serve with Mrs. Atchley, and committee women include: Mesdames Haywood-Hillier, Ruby Noto, Russell Costley, William Allen, John DeMetz, W. S. Van Landingham, Robert Lesesne, William Kalif, Warren Adam, Grady Mangum, Ed Lively and Sheila Loker.

Names were drawn, however, the group is not ready to release the names of the King, Queen, Dukes, Maids, Captains and Junior members of the court. Mrs. Atchley will write the script and while entertainers for the court have been carefully chosen, it is felt that the "surprise" element will be pleasing to the spectators so no pre-publicity will be given as is customary in the true tradition of the Carnival.

Time set for the Carnival Ball is February 13, at 8:00 p. m. in the Pass High gymnasium. All taking part in the ball will be attired in formal and even the small dukes will be in tuxedos. Elaborate evening gowns for the maids and a beautifully gowned queen insure a spectacular and lovely ball. Flowers for the maids and decorations have been donated.

"The public is cordially invited to come as spectators," explained Mrs. Atchley. "There will be a small admission fee of 35c and 50c to cover the expenses of the orchestra, etc., and the spectators are welcome to remain in their seats following the Grand March if they wish to watch the dancers. Because of limited floor space, dancing privileges are limited to members of Teen-Town only."

Teen-Town, sponsored by the Parent-Teachers Association and open to all youths of Pass Christian from thirteen years upward, is meeting a need for organized and to an extent supervised activities for high school students. The movement has been met with enthusiasm for it has brought wholesome recreation for youths and much good entertainment for the entire populace. A large group of supporters are expected in attendance as spectators at the Carnival ball.

EVALUATION BOARD INVITES PATRONS TO PARTICIPATE

February 12, at nine o'clock a. m., patrons of the Pass High school are invited to meet with the school's faculty and the Evaluation Board in the school auditorium where Open Forum of Discussions will be held. Anyone wishing to express an opinion about any phase of the school's program or who wishes to voice any suggestions for improvement or changes will receive a courteous hearing at that time. Also on February 9, at four o'clock p. m., the Board has invited patrons of the school to meet with them in the school's auditorium to hear their plan of evaluation and to become better acquainted with members of the school's faculty and evaluation board.

The importance of these two meetings are not to be minimized, and those having children as students in the school are urged to attend.

TAYLOR-FOR-KING BOOSTERS PARTY AT MIRAMAR

Mr. Charles Atchley, as host of the occasion, cordially invites all who wish to participate in an evening of Monte Carlo entertainment to meet with him at the Miramar Hotel at eight o'clock Friday evening, February 6. Proceeds of the evening's entertainment will go to bolster the drive to crown Dr. C. D. Taylor Jr., as King of the Pass Christian St. Joseph's Parochial Carnival.

Annually candidates vie for the Crown and scores of benefit entertainments are given, for the candidate raising the largest sum of funds is awarded the King's title and honor. Carnival money is turned over to St. Joseph's School and is recognized as a large and important source of revenue for the school's functioning.

Campaign managers for the Taylor-for-King movement include Messrs. Randall Jones, C. E. Spence, H. Wittmann, and Hanson, Jr. These managers have succeeded in scheduling an amazing variety of affairs, and social circles in the Pass are at the height of the season's activities. Climaxing the season's gaiety will be the St. Joseph's Alumni dance, set for February 14 at which time the King and his Queen will be presented at Court.

MARCH OF DIMES GAINS FORCE

Mr. E. A. Lang, chairman of the local polio fund drive, apparently has left no stone unturned in his endeavor to raise over a thousand dollars as this community's donation to the "March of Dimes" fund.

From lungs are rapidly filling in the school rooms with donations from the children, squads of young folks are on the streets collecting from passersby, a letter of appeal has been sent out to a "preferred list," the D. H. Holmes Minstrel Benefit has been scheduled and a "porch light" night for a group of workers willing to canvass the homes where donations is planned. If anyone wishes to donate through the "Porch Light" plan, he is requested to have his light burning at seven o'clock on the 29th of January. Volunteer workers will make a house-to-house canvass

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Alden Garcia announce the birth of a son, Sunday, January 25, at the hospital. He weighed three pounds and 13 ounces.

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Ladner of Pass Christian announce the birth of a son, at 12:33 a. m., Monday, January 26, at the hospital. He weighed nine pounds, four ounces.

Mr. and Mrs. Pincus Granat announce the birth of a son at the King's Daughters hospital Saturday, January 24. He weighed seven pounds, 10 ounces.

Mr. Lang said: "Polio treatment is expensive. One half the donation goes into National Funds and half local. We should raise at least a thousand dollars in order to do our share."

HINTS FOR HOME NURSING DURING FLU EPIDEMIC

While it is generally conceded that a doctor should be consulted in the event of high fever, it is not always possible to secure the immediate services of a physician. Particularly when sickness comes during the night hours. Since much influenza and virus infection is prevalent, it is advisable to check your medicine cabinet and have on hand a supply of aspirin for reduction of fever, a bottle of rubbing alcohol which is also good for quick reduction of high fever, a croup kettle or inhaler and some recommended medicine such as Tincture of Benzoin, and some good ear drops such as Auralgan.

High fever indicates need for special care for many cases of influenza can go into pneumonia. It is advisable to call your physician. If your physician is unwilling to make night calls, give the patient aspirin to reduce the temperature. One aspirin for a child and two for an adult. Sponge the patient with alcohol for a quick relief from fever. If the lungs seem congested start your "steam" or "croup" kettle using a teaspoon of Benzoin in the water. If the patient complains of earache Auralgan warmed and dropped into the ear usually brings relief.

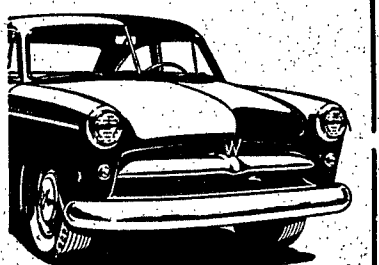

For safety sake it might be well to have foresight and find out if your doctor is willing to make night calls in the event a fever has during the night. Most physicians carry a supply of medication without alerting a druggist that will tide the patient over until business hours. Finding out what you may expect from your doctor before sickness strikes is a wise precaution. Preparedness in your medicine cabinet is a desirable especially during times of epidemics.

Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Boys have purchased the home on Second and Long avenue, which they rented for the past several years, and now plan to make Pass Christian their permanent home. Property was purchased from A. M. Locket and sale was through Lang Real Estate Co.

Mr. Garard J. Fournier has bought a lot in Oakhurst and started building a home. Mr. Woodman is the builder. With an associate, Mr. Fournier has bought another lot in Oakhurst and plans a second home on that location.

Substituting for Mrs. E. A. Allen, who has illness in her family, Mrs. G. Orrell conducted a Young Adult class in Presbyterian Church School in Long Beach last Sunday, and Mrs. George Gundlach on Monday substituted for Mrs. Allen at the Church Devotional Service.

Doctors estimate that approximately 25 per cent of the population of Pass Christian has "Flu" or some type of virus infection.

Debt-Free Mississippi Enters 1953 Leaving Records Behind

Debt-free Mississippi entered the new year with an optimistic outlook after having closed the record books on a memorable 1952 which will be remembered for a notable array of achievements in many fields of endeavor.

Prospering as never before under a forward-looking "business-like" government, Mississippians in the year just past witnessed an encouraging industrial development, excellent business conditions, higher wages, bigger farm incomes, improved educational facilities, needed hospitals and medical facilities and a balanced budget.

Industrially the state chalked up a remarkable record of 37 known new industries which represent an investment of $41,672,000. Of these, 18 were located under provisions of the BAWI law for which communities willingly voted $6,780,000 from which they will realize $4,500,000 in payroll annually and which plants will provide employment to at least 2215 additional persons.

Manufacturing wages were the highest in history and 1952 saw close to 100,000 workers in manufacturing industry in the state receive an estimated $220,000,000. Mississippi, with its crude oil, natural gas, salt domes, limestone deposits and even iron ore, offers many possibilities for expansion to the chemical industry which discovered these potentials in 1952.

Construction or expansion of 11 chemical plants in the state were approved during the year which when completed will represent an investment in excess of $35,000,000, and which will utilize the state's abundant natural resources.

Optimistic over the outlook were the private utilities, including electrical and natural gas services, which spent millions of dollars in expansion programs designed to prepare them for the future anticipated needs of industry.

Agriculturally speaking, Mississippians also prospered, despite a serious summer-long drought, and enjoyed a 20 per cent increase in cash farm income for the first 10 months of the year over 1951. Their income for that period amounted to $426,092,000, compared with $356,278,000 for the corresponding period in '51.

Farmers also enjoyed the biggest cotton yield per acre since 1948, have experienced a 1,000 per cent increase in poultry cash income in the past four years, planted more rice, and have traveled to market on the new farm-to-market roads, the state now enjoying hard-surfacing of 55.3 per cent of its rural roads.

The expansion of one existing chemical plant at Pascagoula, the current construction of another at Vicksburg, and a third under construction at Bogalusa were also 1952 events which offered an even brighter future for the farmer of Mississippi in 1953.

Mississippians were encouraged in their efforts to increase the state's livestock and poultry production through a legislatively approved livestock and poultry production in which set up a guinea anty fund to encourage banks and other lending agencies to make long term loans for this purpose to qualified farmers of the state.

Discovery of 21 new oil and gas fields and one new piercement type salt dome, an increase in total production and the spreading of exploratory activity into a greater area in 1952 also marked an important achievement for the state.

Two mammoth industries on which construction was started during 1952 were the Westinghouse Electric Corporation's multi-million dollar fluorescent lighting fixture plant at Vicksburg, top, and the Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet Company's $6,500,000 plant at Greenville.

The Westinghouse plant, when completed in the fall of this year, is expected to employ between 500 and 800 persons and provide at the state's institutions of higher learning.

The Greenville plant, also expected to be completed this year, will represent an investment of approximately $10,000,000. Citizens of the city voted $4,750,000 in BAWI bonds for its establishment.

Exploration in the southwestern area of the state has been consistently active, but two discoveries during the past year in other areas extended this work. The Muldon gas-condensate field in Monroe County in northeast Mississippi has launched a systematic search of this area of the state. Another discovery at Moxie stimulated excavations in the south and southeast portions of Mississippi.

Mississippians also cashed in on their natural and man-made recreational, scenic and historic attractions in 1952 as tourists dropped an estimated $263,082,384 into the cash registers of the state, a gain of $18,292,996 over the previous year.

Yet even brighter prospects were in store for 1953 with completion of a new 26-mile long beach along the Mississippi's popular Gulf Coast, completion of a new four-lane highway to serve that resort area and the installation of additional facilities for motorists, elimination of tolls across the Natchez bridge, and the establishment of historical markers throughout the state to guide visitors. A new state park at Sardis, popular north Mississippi recreation area, was also begun.

Ending 1952 with a balanced budget despite the largest legislative appropriation in history, Mississippi found itself entering 1953 with money in its treasury and the prospects for future revenue excellent.

For education the state appropriated $50,000,000, its biggest sum. More white and negro schools, both elementary and high schools, were provided in all areas, and important new facilities were installed, expanded, or improved at the state's institutions of higher learning.

Pass Christian News

by MRS. JOE ALLEN

Miss Jon Saussy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walker Saussy of New Orleans and Pass Christian, became the bride of Irwin James Boulet Jr., USAF, son of Dr. and Mrs. Boulet of Lerose, La., Saturday at 4:00 p. m. in St. Paul's Church, Pass Christian. Rev. William S. Barry of Loyola university officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a blush-pink satin gown fashioned with a fitted bodice, designed with a yoke of imported French lace, and long fitted sleeves edged in the lace. The full skirt of small pleats, had a short overskirt of the lace which cascaded down the back over the chapel train. Her long veil of blush-pink illusion was held by a cap of the lace. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

The bride had as her maid of honor her sister, Miss Carroll Saussy. Her bridesmaids were Miss Suzanne Saussy, Mrs. John N. Stewart II, Miss Airey Saussy, Mrs. John L. McCarthy and Mrs. Levere C. Montgomery Jr. Miss Katherine Barnes, niece of the groom, and Miss Suzanne Blain, were flower girls.

The maid of honor and the flower girls wore gowns of peacock-blue satin, and the other attendants wore gowns of light aqua satin. They were designed with fitted bodices that had net yokes edged with folds of the satin material; the full skirts were pleated. They carried bouquets of brown orchids held with brown satin streamers.

Robert M. Boulet was his brother's best man. Groomsmen were Gordon Saussy and Parker Saussy, brothers of the bride, James R. Barnes, John L. McCarthy and Levere C. Montgomery Jr. Duncan Saussy, nephew of Miss Saussy was ringbearer.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Saussy home on the beach.

Later in the evening, the couple left on a trip to Gatlinburg, Tenn. For traveling the bride chose a three-piece suit of mustard, white and slate-blue colored tweed. Her accessories were brown and a white orchid corsage completed her costume.

Following their trip, Mr. and Mrs. Boulet will reside in St. John's Newfoundland, where the groom is stationed with the U. S. A. F.
